Generates keys for RimWorld. The generated keys can be used on other hosts on the computer or other computers you want to access in your RimWorld install. RimWorldv105126 Any copy of RimWorld will be able to use the same private key(s) to generate new keys, and these can be saved to a text file, e.g. private.txt, to be used on any other host, so long as it has the same version of RimWorld. RimWorld:Experimenting with the Water Pump If you would like to get in on our Early Access Water Pump experiment, you will need to be registered to our Early Access Subreddit. To get started, click the link below: The Water Pump will be added to the game, and has been tested with a few different plugins and mods. However, please note that we will be running an Early Access experiment here, so please only use the water pump if you have purchased the Standard version, or if you have registered to the Early Access Subreddit. Do not use the water pump if you have not bought RimWorld or are not registered to the Early Access Subreddit. What is the Water Pump? The Water Pump is a very experimental feature that will be testing our water harvesting capabilities, but also should allow you to control your own dikes and the well, and do things like collect rainwater and offer your own water suppliers for your colonists to use. To use the Water Pump, you'll need to download the Patcher script from above. To install the script, open the installed file in the DLC folder in the RimWorld directory. Place the Patcher.pak file in your RimWorld data folder. Then, follow the instructions below to get your first water pipes working.
