Message reads as '-password-for-the-encrypted-file-setup-autocad-design-suite-2017-key' replacing '-password-for-the-encrypted-file-setup-autocad-design-suite-2017-key' and decrypted file shows as '. I tried to implement the solution in but its not working. Is there an easy way to fix this issue? A: Well what you did is you just skiped the middle part, where you were creating a password for file and instead you wrote the password at the very end. So what you need to do is first decrypt the password part and then write the decrypted password at the end of the script. But in case of the file, instead of decrypting the password part you need to encrypt that part before writing it. Don't count on me to vote for a single Democrat this November — but I can't deny there are some tempting candidates. The first is Stacey Abrams in the Georgia governor's race. I don't know her (I never watched "Shark Tank"), and I don't know her opponent, Georgia Secretary of State Brian Kemp. But Abrams is running as a Democrat, and she's passionate and appealing. The issue Abrams and supporters choose to emphasize will no doubt play well to Georgia voters who have been buffeted by President Trump — legal and illegal immigration and border security. So here's my hesitation:

There's a strong case to be made that Abrams is making a Hillary Clinton-like gamble by focusing on ending gerrymandering, and that risk can be costly. I'm not sure that Abrams would have been the best Georgia governor in the last decade. But she could very well be one of the best the state has had since the 1970s. The odds of beating Kemp are long, and there's another reason to dislike Kemp: I don't trust him to oversee the 2020 Census. What will he do if the White House eventually says that certain legal objections mean the Census needs to be kicked back to the Justice Department? What if it arrives there asking for more funds than Congress will spend? What if it arrives and Kemp says
