Wheeler met with his trainer and several specialists who recommended he be placed on the list, which means he will be sidelined until he is physically ready to play again. RELATED: » Jets' Wheeler praises fans as NHL players take pause for national anthem » Jets to honour Nick Schultz at upcoming home games "It's been a tough summer. I'm not a dog person, but I love this little guy," Wheeler told a press conference on Saturday, breaking down into tears. "We've got a great relationship. ... I've got to get through this a bit to be honest with you, but he's been a huge part of my summer." He later added, "Picasso is the best dog ever. He's just a really cool dog." He is the Jets' fourth star to be placed on long-term injured reserve this season, after Michael Frolik, Jacob Trouba and Bryan Little.Q: Get the value of an attribute when a condition is met I have a div with an ID.
